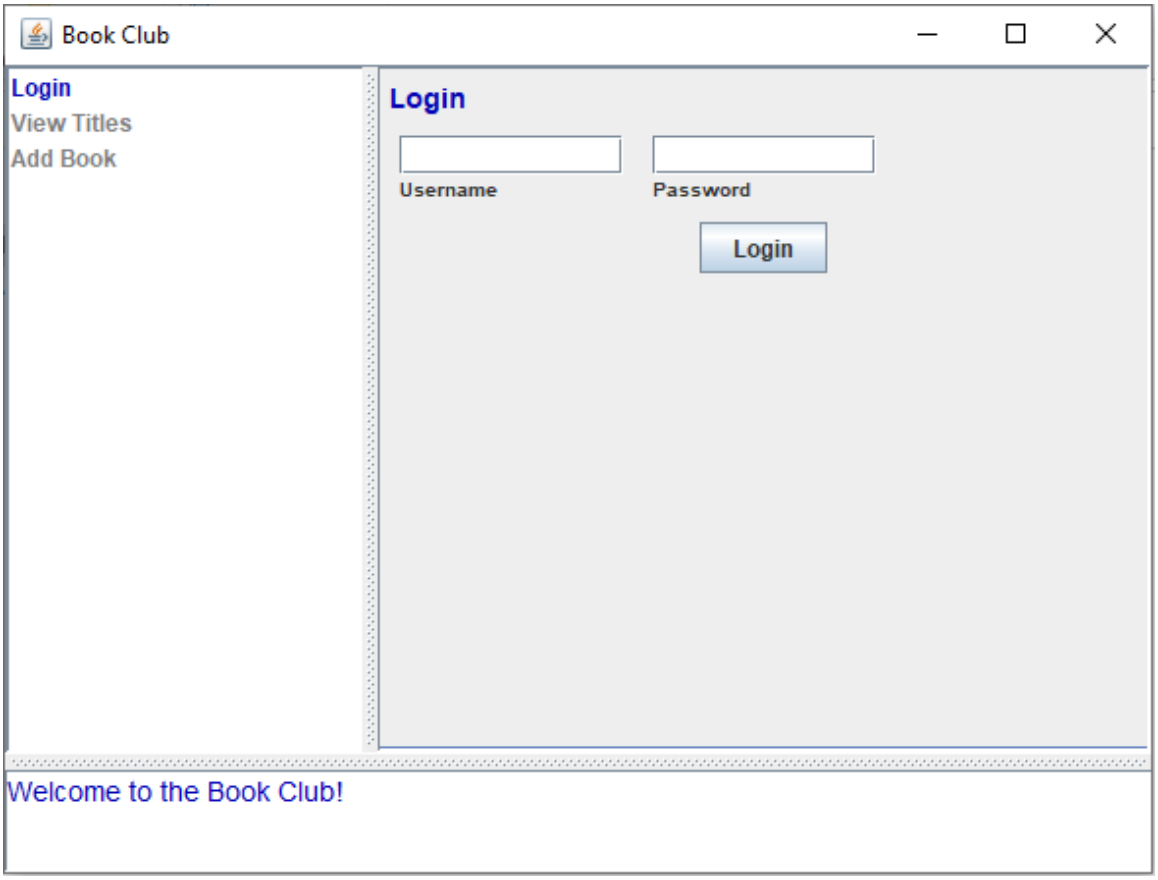
Lab 6

This lab comes with a runnable jar file appLab6.jar, which can be run by double-clicking the file. When you double-click, you will see the following:



Write your own Java application code to reproduce the functionality of this application. You have been given one class Data.java that supplies the data for the application – use this class as your data source (do not attempt to create a database for this little exercise!).